The AI Doc: Or How I Became an Apocaloptimist
Documentary: a balanced inquiry into a transformative technology that weighs the risks with genuine humanity. Roher, on the verge of fatherhood, examines what it means to have a child in an AI-driven world. He interviews major figures in the field — including Sam Altman, Dario Amodei, Demis Hassabis, Eliezer Yudkowsky, and Tristan Harris — to weigh both the existential risks and the potential upsides of AI, landing on the coined stance of "apocaloptimism": genuine anxiety paired with hope.

CROSSLUCID is a collective co-founded by Sylwana Zybura & Tomas C. Toth in 2018. Our collaborative practice is grounded in ethics of care, engaging technology not as a lever of control or speed but as a partner in co-evolutions. Through immersive storytelling, synthetic imaging, and poetic speculation, we create situations in which emotion, ecology, and computation meet and listen to one another. Our ongoing projects materialise through post-disciplinary collaborations, process-driven prototyping and the celebration of intuitive leaps of knowledge, bridging scientific inquiry with ancestral ways of knowing.
